

Parkinson's Research Open Day

FOR PEOPLE WITH PARKINSON'S AND CAREGIVERS

at the Wolfson Centre for Age-Related Diseases,
King's College London, Borough High Street, London. SE1 1UL

Monday 18th May 2015 from 10am to 4pm

Meet the scientists & learn about Parkinson's disease research

The aim of the Open Day is to de-mystify the research process by showing you how and why scientists carry out research into Parkinson's disease.

There will be a full day's program, with short talks and optional guided tours to meet and talk with scientists in their research laboratories.

Refreshments will be provided.

Admission is free but restricted to named ticket holders only

To register for a ticket, please visit
<https://eventbrite.co.uk/event/15796069469/>

For more information or for any questions, please contact

Olivia Duncan
olivia.duncan@kcl.ac.uk

Wolfson
CARD

